Going The Distance

Chuan Yew Eng cooks for her siblings, sews her own clothes and expresses herself through drawings and paintings. This might not seem extraordinary except that Yew Eng lives with paraplegia. When she was 16, a bad fall damaged her spine irreparably. Over the years, Yew Eng learnt to be independent and remains resilient to this day.

She came under the care of St Luke's Hospital (SLH) after she had a fall. The therapists helped to build her physical strength so that she could return home.

At home, she is visited by SLH Home Care nurses who provide nursing care such as changing of catheter and giving advice on skin care to prevent skin tear due to prolonged sitting. Without this service, Yew Eng would have to arrange for her own transport to a polyclinic which would incur more cost and time.

Despite her physical limitations, Yew Eng, 74, declares, "As long as I can, I will remain active. I want to achieve my goals in life. I also aim to enjoy myself while I can, being as independent as possible."

Yew Eng is also one of the 25 inspirational seniors featured in our Being Silver e-book. The book showcases seniors who defy the stereotypes of ageing and live life to the fullest. View the e-book at bit.ly/beingsilverbk.

St Luke's Hospital cares for the whole person, recognising people have more than just physical needs. They also have emotional and psychosocial needs. As a charity hospital, most of our patients are from lower income households. They may have cancer, pneumonia, dementia, stroke, fractures and may have undergone surgery and amputation.

Your giving helps:

1. Care for the whole person in every ward, including dedicated dementia, palliative and wound wards, and rehabilitation gyms.
2. Provide financial assistance to patients who need medical care, basic home modifications and transport to attend therapy.
3. Improve access to community healthcare services through St Luke's Community Clinic and home care.

St Luke's Hospital cares for 2,300 inpatients and 3,500 outpatients each year. Your donation will help our patients recover, return home and reintegrate into the community. Visit slh.org.sg/give for more ways to help.
